AMERICAN NOBILITY

By PIERRE DE COULEVAIN

The Story of an International Marriage

The conditions which any American girl must face who marries abroad are analyzed with a wise sympathy and that delicate charm of expression which has made this author's books more widely read than those of any living Frenchwoman. Its interest is especially direct and deep in America where marriage between those of different nations is frequent.

THE FEAR OF LIVING

By HENRY BORDEAUX

Foreword by RENE DOUMIC

Translated by RUTH HELEN DAVIS from the 74th French edition.

The book has aroused hot discussion in France because of its daring exposition of the deep-seated modern evil of shirking all danger, and the responsibilities of life; it is a remarkable picture of French provincial life.

Ready in March. Cloth, 12mo, $1.35, postpaid $1.45.

Whose Important New Novel

The CASE of JENNIE BRICE

Is Now Ready

Mystery, desperate and baffling, is frankly the thing in this new Rinehart novel. The sudden, unaccountable disappearance of a well-known actress; a thrilling case of mistaken identity; a network of incriminating circumstances pointing to the guilt of the actress' husband; a chain of evidence establishing a substantial alibi; clues galore indicating a score of possibilities; a jury trial; a strange love plot—all these go to make this tale more intense than any previous work by this popular author. Yet it still retains the characteristic Rinehart element of humor and cheer.

THE WEAKER VESSEL

By E. F. Benson

Author of "Dodo," etc.

A beautiful young girl has within her the latent seeds of genius, and of a noble character. In the course of time she escapes from her quiet nest into the outside world; and in the course of time, like many young girls, she marries. Then comes her test. The husband, like her, is lovable, and in his way a genius; but he possesses one fatal defect of character—drunkenness, which, in the course of time, warps his whole nature. As he sinks lower, his wife rises higher. And when the inevitable catastrophe comes, she meets it with a noble and sunny fortitude which cannot fail to affect even cynical readers; and from the wreck builds up at last an enduring happiness. E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo," "The Climber," etc., has never written a better or bigger story.

THE POISONED PEN

Further Adventures of Craig Kennedy, Scientific Detective

By Arthur B. Reeve

Author of "The Silent Bullet," etc.

The publishers of The Cosmopolitan decided at one time that they had had enough of Craig Kennedy, and they cut him off. But they soon found that their million subscribers had by no means had enough. Such a storm of protests arose that Craig Kennedy promptly returned to the pages of the big magazine. Craig Kennedy tracks down criminals by the methods that a scientist would use in ferreting out a germ. How he outwits the Confidence King, is more astute than the Unofficial Spy, and can go as far beneath the surface of things as the Sand-hog; how he discovers the Germ of Death and sees the Invisible Ray; these are some of the incidents that will attract those who like to analyze and be thrilled, guess and be mystified—in other words, readers of detective fiction—to "The Poisoned Pen."

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ormanent thereunto."—BACON.

THE DANGER IN TOO GREAT DISCOUNTS.

FROM two separate retail sources—one a representative bookstore, one a well-known department store!—the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has received warnings of the dangers inherent in granting too great discounts on net books. Both are old, conservative, broad-grounded and successful businesses, whose opinions may be justly said to carry weight.

The old "regular" discount seldom, if ever, ran higher than "40 off," with "40 and 5" and "40 and 10" on quantity orders. Under the retail prices obtaining in the old days on regular books, "net" books at "a quarter off" undoubtedly showed a larger net profit to the bookseller—or perhaps it would be more correct to say, showed a smaller net loss—than "regular" books at "40 off."

The problem was a simple one: to raise the discount to a point showing the bookseller a profit, not a large profit, necessarily, but a profit. If we accept the ordinarily given figures of bookselling cost, twenty-eight per cent., "thirty off," would show a profit; a "third off," and especially "a third and 5," and "a third and 10," would show the dealer not only a sure profit, but a larger percentage of profit than most of us succeed in getting out of our businesses.

"A small profit, but it must be net," is the way the cost experts put it. The crux of the cost problem is the ascertainment to a surety that the profit is a net one. In the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for November 16 last was a very interesting summary of cost data. Merchandise costs, delivery and express charges, rent (even when you own your building)—these are costs seldom, if ever, overlooked. Others no less vital: interest on the investment; a proper salary allowance to yourself as manager, entirely outside your profits as proprietor; are just as real as merchandise costs, and few booksellers nowadays fail to make due allowance for them. But there are other entirely legitimate costs, approved by the best accounting practice, which many retailers, otherwise well informed, fail to take into account.

Take such items as annual apportionments to various reserves. Every bookseller makes an annual apportionment into a fire reserve—only he does it by paying a premium on an insurance policy! How many dealers insure their businesses against their own death and sickness by taking out personal life and accident insurance in favor of their businesses; against a panic year in general business or a sudden slump in the book trade by a properly built-up reserve of gilt-edged securities which will tide the business over the crisis; against bad debts and stock depreciation by adequate writings off and reserves? The costs of all these things are legitimate "expenses of doing business." After you have cared for these and other similar costs, you can well afford not to despise the "small profit," for you will know that it is indeed a net one.

Of course, the chief danger inherent in overlarge discounts is the stimulation to price-cutting. "Make the margin of profit large, and some fool is bound to come up who will want to give half of it away." The net-price system has been built up with too much labor to hazard it unnecessarily.

But besides this, there is another side. The margin between twenty-eight per cent. and  $33\frac{1}{3}$  and 10 per cent. is, unless the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is much mistaken, a greater margin of profit than any book publishing concern takes regularly out of its business. To give a larger discount and live, the publisher has but one recourse—to increase the retail price of his wares. This may seem a simple solution, but the thoughtful bookseller may well question its wisdom. Complaints of the existing high prices of books are widespread, and however unjustified, there is no doubt that any general increase of prices would to a certain extent cut off the patronage of certain book-buying classes which the bookseller could ill afford to lose. Professional people—teachers, ministers and their like—are the real book readers of the country; in the old days they, with the leisured class, were the chief book buyers. There is now no denying the fact that, what with the general high cost of living, without any adequate corresponding increase in professional salaries, this class has relatively declined in book-buying importance. Any movement which would tend, however slightly, to still further diminish this bookbuying should be, at least, given most careful consideration.

Now is the best time of the bookseller's year to make a "drive" on Bibles and prayer-books and religious gift books in general. The white and purple of the Easter season give excellent background for effective window displays. On the stationery side, of course, suggestions for window decorations and counter appeal are innumerable; but the bookseller who fails to see the opportunities of Eastertide for pushing the sale of books is not fully alive to his work. The list of religious gift books is a long one, and at every range of price; and the custom of book-giving at Easter, as on St. Valentine's, is a growing and eminently desirable one. Help it along.

THE 1912 volume of American Book Prices Current, edited as usual by Luther S. Livingston, and published by Dodd & Livingston, is this year swollen to 965 pages. 15,471 lots are recorded, as against 13,626 last year. These were selected from some 105,000 lots described in the 118 auction catalogs examined. As in 1911, the Hoe library so far overshadowed the other sales of the year in importance as unduly to eclipse them. It is unnecessary to add that Book Prices Current is invaluable to any dealer handling second-hand books.

SOME METHODS OF SELLING IN FOREIGN BOOKSTORES.

AN ADDRESS BY ERNEST EISELE, OF BRENTANO'S, DELIVERED BEFORE THE NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS' SCHOOL.

It is with great reluctance that I have acceded to the request of the chairman of the committee to speak to you on some methods of selling in foreign bookstores. The principles governing the book trade here and abroad differ quite considerably. The only reason which I can give for my being here is the fact that there is something in our trade which is the same all the world over, and by bringing to your attention some details which govern the sales of books in continental countries perhaps to some of you there may be suggested an idea which can suitably be adapted to the conditions here. The interchange of ideas on similar subjects and problems and their discussion can only bring good results.

The German book trade, with its splendid organization and its ramifications throughout the world, is usually pointed out as a good example. Its seemingly healthy condition is primarily based on the very close alliance of interests between publishers and booksellers, who, through their combined organization, Boersenverein, with its separate city and state organizations throughout the Empire, are able to maintain and control the published retail price and otherwise give assurance of an income to the booksellers. There is hardly another country in the world where there are so many booksellers per capita of the population, except Denmark and Holland, both countries with strong trade organizations, based on lines similar to the German one, and the field of the retail bookseller is hardly anywhere more intensively worked than there. This great mass of retail booksellers throughout the country forms such a valuable selling organization that it enables the production of many a book which otherwise might never see the light.

It is true that the German publisher takes the large part of the risk, as very often he has to print editions larger than his probable sales warrant; but, on the other hand, he can often go into publishing ventures and rely upon his correspondents to do their utmost to bring their goods to the knowledge of the interested public. The publisher in America has to spend money for direct, broadcast advertising of his new publications—in papers, magazines, etc. Abroad, the burden of the advertising falls on the retailer, who does most of it by bringing the books themselves to the notice of the prospective customer. He orders from the publisher on consignment as many copies of a book as he has interested customers for in his territory or among his clientele; he sends the books to them on approval, and very often sells them in this way.

This custom of sending out books on approval is deeply rooted in the German book trade, and constitutes a valuable asset, for, through it, with a relatively small cost, the prospective customer is reached and directly interested in the book. If one considers that there is usually a bookseller already in a town of about three thousand inhabitants, and that there are at least a thousand dealers who can be reached and interested, good for one or more copies of a new book, according to its value to the general public, some of the success of the German system can be accounted for.

Leipzig is the central town for the German book trade. Every bookseller and publisher, wherever in Germany he may be located, has his representative there. All the enclosures from all publishers go to the bookseller's representative, who collects them and ships them in bulk, charging a small fee for such service. The publisher, wherever he may be located in Germany, delivers his publications prepaid to the bookseller's agent in Leipzig, and all the unsold goods have to be returned to the publisher's agent at Leipzig, even if the publisher be located much farther away from that place. The risk involved for the retailer in many cases is the expense for transportation back and forth of books he receives on consignment from the publisher; he has no capital to invest in the outright purchase of the books.

supply his every want in the literary field. The American way, which is also practised to a large extent in other countries, is, of course, easy—simply to transmit an order for a periodical to the publishers, cash a small commission attached to it, and let the publisher and the United States mail do the rest during the year. The advertising value and the moral value of weekly or monthly intercourse with your customer is very important and evidently much underestimated in many countries. The German mail delivers period-

AN EASILY ARRANGED BUT EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY.

I would like to point out another trade custom in Germany which I consider of prime importance, as it helps to solve an important problem for the trade all over the world. The German bookseller sees that he is in constant touch with his customers. The approval shipments go a good way toward this end, but he has a few more methods. The one I would like to draw to your attention now is widely different from the American way of doing business. The German dealer supplies his customer with his periodical, be it a weekly, monthly or a special trade paper, and he supplies it to him every week or month, whenever it is issued, from his own house to his customer's door, so as to remind him ever so often that he is the man who is there to icals just as cheaply as the United States mail, and I do not think that in Germany more than ten per cent. of all periodical publications are delivered through the mail directly from the publishers. Of course, we have to take into consideration the fact that the centralization of the book and publishing trade in Leipzig, already referred to, and the co-operation of all parties concerned, make the service of periodicals through the booksellers a desirable, remunerative and important part of his business.

Subscription lists of another character are those recording annual publications, such as year books, and the names of customers who have taken previous volumes. Suppose one of your customers buys to-day a "Who's Who" from you; do you not think it is worth your while to take down his name carefully, and next year, when the new issue is announced notify him and try to get his order? Usually the customer, gratified by your attention and courtesy, will give you the order and perhaps enable you to get a better discount from the publisher by ordering a larger quantity than usual, the bulk of which is disposed of by advance orders. This and the "continuation lists," as they are called, are valuable assets to the stock in trade of the German retailer, and their careful handling shows the health of this business.

There is also another practice which, if properly started, would, I believe, bring great results in this country, and would help the American dealer to reach many customers now never reached or neglected. I refer to the practice of publishing, in parts, large or even moderate-sized works of general interest, subscribed to as a whole. This subscription business has nothing in common with the American subscription business, as it is usually understood here. It is simply a way of greatly widening the circle of readers who possess the book. Works like Nansen's "Farthest North," other travel books, books of historical character, have attained a large sale by being published in, let us say, fifty weekly or bi-weekly parts at ten cents each. For instance, the workman who would never think of spending five dollars for a book, would gladly spend ten cents a week for the purchase of such a work, which he treasures very highly. One of the most pleasant recollections which I have carried away from the apprenticeship in our trade in a small manufacturing town in Germany is the intercourse which I had with the intelligent class of workmen and small employees who came to our place regularly to get the parts of just such works as they came out. I do not think that the American publisher and bookseller lives up to his opportunity. The delivery of a complete book and the payment on the installment plan, which is just as much practiced abroad, does not entirely supplant the wide field which I have reference to.

Something much needed in this country, especially at this juncture, when everything tends to show that the public is swinging more from the light fiction to more serious reading, are the classified catalogues issued on the Continent in different countries, mainly by large jobbing houses, and sold at a nominal sum to the trade for free distribution to customers. These very carefully compiled lists of books in print on various subjects contain such books as are actually asked for, and enable the customer to get information about the books published in the line in which he is interested. I understand that this same information can also be gained here by consulting the American catalogue or other reference books; but you will admit that it hardly would be practical to give the American catalogue to a customer to take home, so that he may enlighten himself on the subject in which he is interested. There are other reasons besides the size and weight which prevent such a practice. I received yesterday from a dealer of the Hague, Mr. Nijhoff, a neat little catalogue, entitled "Selected List of Dutch Books Recommended to Libraries." It seems to me a perfect sample of the concise review which might be brought to the attention of customers here. The specialist in any branch of science or learning does not need the assistance of the bookseller to help to find the bibliographical status of a book. He is usually better able to do so through the special bibliography at his disposal, but the booklover at large, who wants to get information about a certain subject, is splendidly helped by these little catalogues, which bring excellent results.

For reasons stated before, I have dwelt on the details of some of the trade practices in Germany. These practices are by no means confined to Germany alone; other countries, which have a strongly organized retail trade, like Holland, Denmark, Sweden, make even a better showing. There is an absolute need for a widely scattered retail trade, and countries where this retail trade does not exist, or for special reasons has ceased to exist, suffer from the loss. We can draw a comparison between the conditions of our sister-republic France and the United States: both have had more real bookstores, but have drifted away from them. In France, with the exception of seventy or eighty towns, where there are bookstores worth the name, the book business is handled by the railroad bookstores or some kiosk on the main place of the town, both controlled by an agency, such as the American News Company, with ramifications throughout the country. There is the salesman who does sell what is sent to him, but without any initiative on his part. He has in many cases no knowledge of, or no interest in, his merchandise. Far be it from me to criticise his being there; he undoubtedly serves some purpose, but, on the other hand, the principle of a central agency, controlling the sale of literature throughout the country, is wrong. With the kind of a trust practice with which this is performed, it is very difficult for an individual real bookseller to start a new business, for those articles which would pay his current expenses are taken away from him through prohibitive competition.

The French publishers have taken a warning, however, and are proceeding to help in the re-establishment of really good booksellers all over their country. One of their chief mainstays is the creation of the booksellers' school in Paris, which was founded in 1898, and which, from the start, has proved a success. It is maintained at the expense of the Cercle de la Librairie, the Booksellers' and Publishers' Association of France. Their aims are analogous to ours. We have to encourage young men to follow our trade, and instruct them just as they do. In the school which we hope to establish as an outgrowth of these lectures, those experienced in our trade will give the newcomers, boys and girls, the benefit of their experience. They will show you the short-cut to success. It is "up to you" to listen and to make the best of it. What we want to show to those who come to our trade is the intimate working of it. To show how a book is made, the relative value of its different parts, so that you can talk intelligently even about the mechanical part of the book, not to speak of the literary value, which you have to get yourself. I remember once I listened to the conversation between an otherwise very successful salesman and a customer. He talked of the book before him as printed on Japan paper, while it was in reality ordinary Dutch paper, brought forth an incredulous smile from the customer and missed his sale; so you see even those things should be learned. Further, you will be told of the principles underlying successful advertising, through print, letter and show window. You will be taught how to sell books, the psychological moments leading up to a sale; you will be taught the intelligent arrangement of stock, the proper handling of bibliographical helps, the mechanical handling of the book. The advanced classes of the schools, through discussions on topics relating to our trade, should become a clearing house, radiating valuable information for the whole trade.

There is an absolute necessity for schools of special training. They are opened everywhere. The big department store has its school to prepare its young help for its needs; the newspaperman has his school; the trades have their schools to impart knowledge, which, under present conditions of labor and of business, the employer, absorbed in the actual running of his business, can no longer give to his assistants.

No school, however, can give you information for every phase in your life. The Booksellers' School cannot give you the information for every phase of your trade life, but we will try to give you a foundation on which you yourselves can build. If it can institute in you the love for your trade, our work will not have been in vain.

BORDEN LIBRARY SALE TOTALS

PRINTS of old New York collected by Augustin Daly, playwright and theatrical manager, sold by his estate for $2,470 after his death in 1899, and since amplified by M. C. D. Borden, the cotton manufacturer and collector, were sold on February 19 at the Borden book sale for $20,100. The volumes contain 1,243 rare maps, original drawings, lithographs in colors, broadsides, deeds, documents and miscellany.

The entire library sale yielded $200,502.50. High expectations over the offering of the first four folio editions of Shakespeare suffered a chill when the announcement was made of the discovery that since the printing of the catalogue the work had been found to be imperfect, in that the title and accompanying verses appeared in it in fac-simile.

Walter T. Wallace, a private buyer, finally obtained the work at $7,800. Experts said that yesterday's number would have brought $25,000 had it been perfect.

Robert Louis Stevenson's works furnished a star attraction. The manuscript of his "Catriona," covering 214 pages of foolscap folio, was sold to Rosenbach & Co. for $4,400. First editions of his complete works, in eighty-five volumes, including original manuscripts and other matter, brought $1,100, his "College Papers" in original wrappers $2,500.

Swinburne's original manuscript of the tragedy "Chastelard" was bought by Charles Scribner's Sons for $2,000. George D. Smith obtained the original manuscript of Tennyson's "Nimue," renamed "Vivien," and part of the idyll of "Enid" for $3,200.

Thackeray first editions in seventy-three volumes went to Mr. Smith for $1,275, his unpublished verses with five original manuscripts and two drawings by Thackeray, of which only twenty-five copies were issued, for $1,650; a copy of "The Snob," Thackeray's publication at Cambridge, for $1,000; its successor, "The Gownsmen," for $1,000, and his "Flore et Zephyr," with original pen and ink sketch, $1,000.

The Lexington Bookstore paid $3,000 for the five volumes of Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler," which were published in the lifetime of the author.

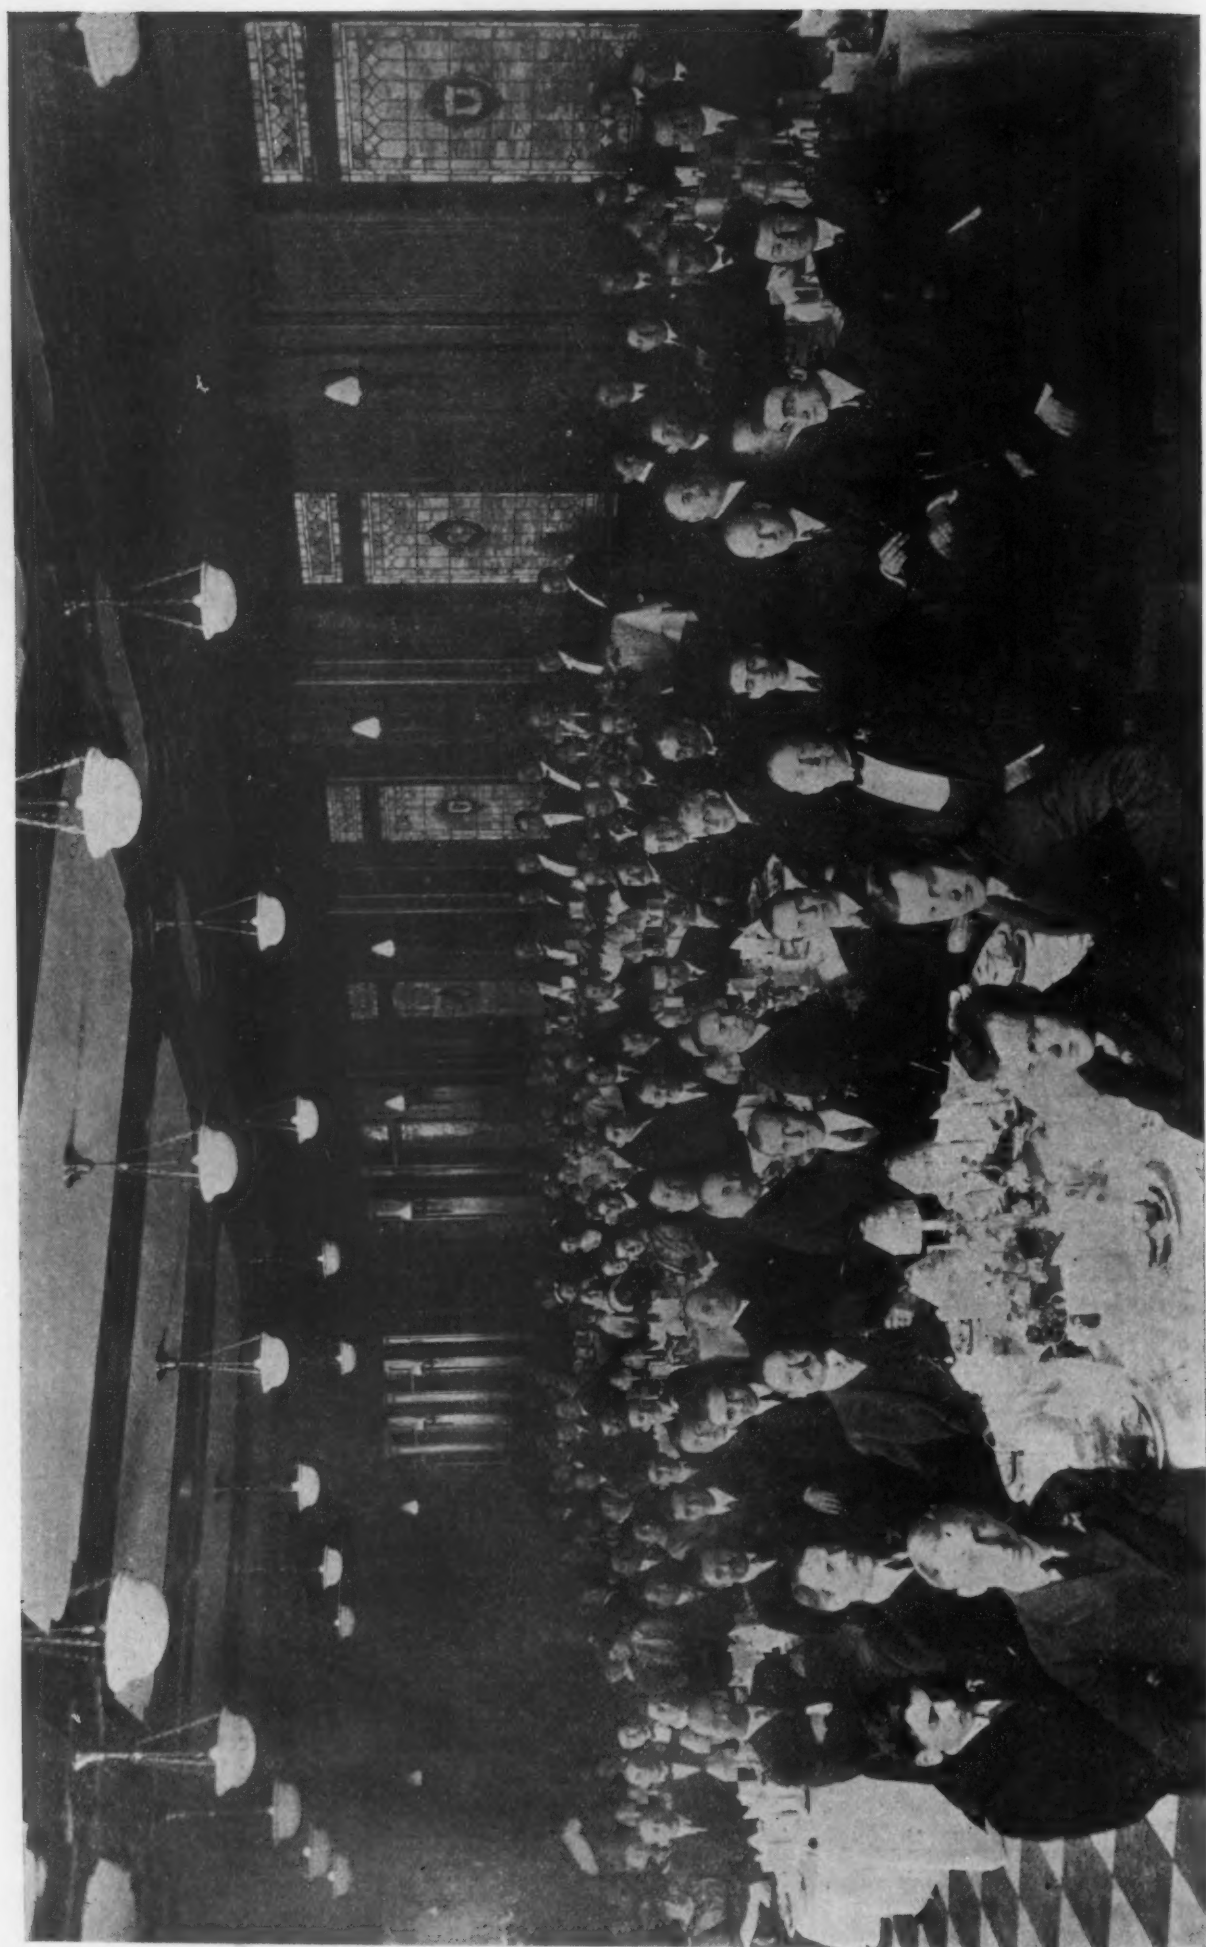

Milton's "Paradise Lost," first issue of the first edition, in fine order, with "John Milton" across the title page in large Italic capitals, was sold to Walter M. Hill for $1,425.

One bid of $2,500 made W. W. Seaman, agent, owner of the original autograph manuscript memoirs of Lord Horatio Nelson. An album of holograph letters, signed letters and signed documents, with examples from Lord Nelson, Lady Hamilton and others, brought $1,600.

REORGANIZATION OF McCALL COMPANY.

THE McCall Corporation, New York, with a capital of $6,750,000, has been organized and has taken over the stock of the McCall Company, publishers of McCall's Magazine and McCall's Quarterly Book of Fashions, and manufacturers of McCall's dress and embroidery patterns. Edward A. Simmons has been made president of the McCall Corporation. Mr. Simmons is president and owner of the Simmons-Boardman Publishing Company, publishers of The Railway Age-Gazette, American Engineer, and The Signal Engineer, and the "standard" railroad books.

James H. Ottley, formerly president of the McCall Company, and principal owner of its stock, will continue as a director in the McCall Corporation. Mr. Ottley bought the pattern business of James McCall in 1893. The business was begun in 1870, and McCall's Magazine was first published in 1891. In 1893 there were nine employees. During Mr. Ottley's ownership the business has grown so that there are now 893 employees. The company has leased quarters at 236 West Thirty-seventh street, New York City.

FIRST ANNUAL DINNER, BOSTON BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE. THE AMERICAN HOUSE, FEBRUARY 17, 1913.

The McCall Company has been manufacturing about 2,000,000 patterns a month. The circulation of McCall's Magazine for 1912 was given as over a million a month and that of the Quarterly Book of Fashions 150,000 a month. The company issued about 2,250,000 dealers' catalogues and 35,000,000 monthly fashion sheets in 1912.

The directors of the McCall Corporation are Mr. Simmons, Mr. Ottley, Ray Morris, member of the banking firm of White, Weld & Co., New York; Howard Bayne, vice-president, Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company, New York, and Howard F. Whitney, of the banking firm of H. N. Whitney & Sons, New York. The executives in addition to Mr. Simmons are W. N. Newcomb, secretary, and A. John Rotheroe. C. D. Spalding will continue as advertising manager.

DINNER TO ALEXANDER WILLIAM DRAKE—"DEAN OF ART EDITORS."

"THE friends of Drake—as many as can get in" to quote the original announcement of the dinner, gathered at the Aldine Club on Tuesday evening, February 25, to honor Alexander William Drake, Art Editor of the Century, on his retirement from that post after forty years of service. Few men have been honored and loved more than Mr. Drake, and the gathering of this date, the culmination of a number of dinners which had been tendered to him by various organizations, was the best possible proof of that honor and love. F. Hopkinson Smith, as chairman of the dinner committee, presided as toastmaster, in his characteristic way, introducing and interspersing the speeches with his stories. Speeches were made by Theodore F. De Vinne, who gave an interesting account of the co-operation of Mr. Drake in meeting the printing difficulties connected with the art of illustration as revolutionized within the period of Mr. Drake's service; by Cass Gilbert, as representative of the Architectural League, who told of Mr. Drake's early encouragement of that organization; by Charles Dana Gibson, for the Society of Illustrators, who emphasized the perfect relations existing between Mr. Drake as art editor and the artists; by W. J. Hoggson, who gave a humorous account of the mysterious legends on the banners which decorated the walls and had been borne in procession into the dining room, and by Francis M. Crowninshield, who succeeds Mr. Drake as Art Editor of the Century. Herbert S. Houston, as Secretary of the Committee, read a few only of the sheaf of letters and telegrams of regret and good-will. Toward the close of the dinner, Mr. Smith made a felicitous speech of appreciation and presented to Mr. Drake a book in which the participants in the dinner had affixed their signatures to a letter of appreciation, and Mr. Drake made a simple and touching response. The Mendelssohn Glee Club furnished the music, including some characteristic skits written for the occasion. Another interesting feature was the presence of an old hand-press from the De Vinne establishment in which the veteran printer who had worked with Mr. Drake from the beginning, printed off during the evening, portraits of Mr. Drake, which were handed to each participant. The menu was of composite design, including contributions from nearly a score of artists, who thus testified their affection and admiration for Mr. Drake.

The guests were seated at tables arranged chiefly by club membership, no less than ten organizations participating through membership, including the Authors, Century, National Arts and Players Clubs, The Architectural League, the Society of Illustrators and others.

NEW STATISTICS ON NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES.

THE gain in the number of newspapers printed in the United States, which last year was interrupted for the first time in thirty years, has now been resumed, according to the figures presented by N. W. Ayer & Co.'s American Newspaper Annual and Directory for 1913, which is just off the press.

Gains are shown by the dailies and weeklies, losses by the monthlies and quarterlies.

The new volume lists 24,381 newspapers and periodicals presenting 10 distinct items about each, including its circulation rating.

The number of daily newspapers now listed is 2,633 as against a total of 2,610 last year, an increase of 23.

The present number of weeklies is 17,285, a gain of 27.

The monthlies, which had all suffered a setback in 1911 and made a total gain last year of 77, this year again fell back with a net loss of 6.

To this loss New England contributed with a falling off of 9 monthly publications, New York with a falling off of 13, the Middle Atlantic States with a loss of 4, the Western States with a loss of 12 and the outlying territories with that of 9. This was partially offset by a gain of 16 in the Southern States, 31 in the Middle Western States, and 6 in the Pacific Slope States.

The Pacific Slope continues to show the most consistent gains in a majority of the classifications, but only slightly above that of the Western States.

The special classifications of publications in the Annual and Directory this year are 208, covering almost every field of human effort. Woman suffrage, for example now has 10 publications as against 8 last year; new thought has 15 as against 10 last year; automobiles and motors have 67 as against 65 last year, etc. Publications of more than 40 secret society orders are catalogued. Foreign language papers printed in 35 different tongues are described in 35 classifications of their own.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

(Special Correspondence to the London "Bookseller" and the "Publishers' Weekly.")

DOES the young Frenchman of the present differ greatly from the adolescent Gaul of, say, twenty years ago? Does he evince a desire for action, a patriotic faith, a political realism, and various other qualities which were lacking in his immediate predecessors? According to the author—or authors, for there are said to be two—who, under the name of Agathon, have written "Les jeunes gens d'aujourd'hui" (Plon-Nourrit), he does all this and more. He is, or at all events he is going to be, much more serious. He is going to devote his nights to the studies of the duties of citizenship, and his days to putting the said duties into practice.

It would seem that such a type does really exist, or, if it does not, it will have to be invented to satisfy a new literary fashion; for during the last few months many books on the same subject have appeared. Only a fortnight ago there was "Aux 'ecoutes de la France qui vient," by Gaston Riou (B. Grasset), which is "the passionate and lyrical confession of a young Frenchman, a type of the new generation, ardently religious and patriotic." In short, the book is more than "an enquiry or a confession; it is the 'credo' of a generation." Perhaps because I am too old—and "crabbed age and youth cannot live together"—I am out of touch with the youth of France and the present day. I have not noticed this phenomenon to any remarkable extent, but that it does exist there can be no doubt. Not only in France do we hear of it, but an esteemed correspondent in London "has got his eye on it," like Jacob Omnium (not my revered confrère but the gentleman whose "hoss away was rob"), and I have no doubt the Germans also are talking about the neigung of the French youth.

But, of course, young Frenchmen cannot acquire the requisite knowledge of their civic duties without instruction, which several writers are only too willing to supply. Amongst those latter we must give the foremost place to M. Raymond Poincaré, President-elect of the French Republic, who has written, "Ce qui demande la Cité" (Hachette). In this little pamphlet—which can be bought for a franc—he explains what are Communes, Departments, the Political Constitution, the Budget, Taxes &c., and what are the duties of the President, the Ministers, Senators, Deputies, and all the other wheels, cogs, and levers of the State machine. M. Emile Faguet is also endeavoring to teach the young idea how to shoot, and having already given us an "Initiation Philosophique," has followed it up with an "Initiation Littéraire" (Hachette), in which he reviews all literature from the very earliest specimens down to Dickens and Rénan. M. Roujon is going to add a volume of "Initiation Artistique," and M. Leroy-Beaulieu a companion volume on "Initiation financière." Possibly other well-known writers will initiate us into other sciences and arts.

A lucky hit was made by M. George Bonnamour, the author of "L'Apaisement" (B. Grasset), who has chosen for his subject the political career of M. Aristide Briand. As M. Briand became Prime Minister—vice M. Poincaré promoted—about a week after the book was published, it may be said to have come out opportunely. The war has also begun to produce its crop of literature. M. Stéphane Lauzanne, the editor of the Matin—who is, I believe, a relative of the late M. de Blowitz—represented his own journal at the bedside of "the sick man," and has described his experiences in "Au chevet de la Turquie" (Fayard), and we are promised shortly "Vers la Victoire" (Berger-Levrault), by Lieut. Wagner, the ubiquitous war correspondent of the Reichpost. He saw all the fighting—in fact, it might almost seem that the Bulgarian army was accustomed to "wait for the Wagner" before beginning to fight, if, by any rare chance he were absent.

"La disgrâce de Nicholas Machiavel," by Jean Dubreton (Mercure de France), is the story of the cunning statesman who "gave his name to our old Nick," and was hoist with his own petard. That searcher after mysteries, Dr. Cabanès, has continued his "Legendes et curiosités de l'Histoire" (A. Michel); "Casanova à Paris," by Gaston Capon (Schmeit), gives us some further details of the life of that unsavoury rascal; the indefatigable M. Arthur Chuquet—who writes a new book every month or so—has produced a life of "General Dagobert" (Fontemoing)—an almost soldier of the Republic, who was killed while fighting against the Spaniards in 1794; and M. Goron, formerly head of the detective police, tells us about "Les Chasseurs de l'an VIII." (Flammarion). These chauffeurs were bandits who used to enter houses, tie up the proprietor, and place him before his own kitchen fire, with his bare feet in close proximity to the bars, and allow him to toast till he stated where his money was hidden. They had a good many murders to answer for, but, taken on the whole, they were not as deadly as the modern sort.

Amongst forthcoming works, which we await with impatience, are "La Mort" by Maeterlinck (Fasquelle) and "Nord-Sud" (Calmann-Lévy), a book of travels in England, America, Corsica, and Spitzbergen, by René Bazin, of the Academy. Anatole France—who is of the Academy, but not in it, for he has never been under its dome for some years past—has joined the ranks of the dramatists, and produced a two-act comedy, with the somewhat formidable title of "La Comédie de celui qui épousa une femme muette" (Calmann-Lévy). Whether it is an "actable" play I am unable to say, for all the first edition was subscribed for in advance.

In spite of a line in "Measure for Measure" ("Some say he is with the Emperor of Russia") allusions to "thick-skinned ice" and the "frosty Caucasus," and the fact that the King and his companions in "Love's Labor Lost" disguise themselves as Muscovites, I do not believe that Shakespeare ever went to Russia, and I therefore approached "Shakespeare en Russie," by A. Lirondelle (Hachette), with some mistrust. I was relieved to find that—as my friendly antagonist, M. Demblon, would say—it dwelt with "works not the man."

GERMAN LETTER.

(Special Correspondence to the Publishers' Weekly.)

STUTTGART, January 16, 1913.—The Christmas business is over. After all the complications and labors of December, the trade is at rest and now faces the old question: "Has the enormous outlay of work brought adequate profit?"

Unfortunately the economic conditions at the end of the past year were not favorable. The unrest in the Balkans, the threatening danger of war which would have affected Germany almost as seriously as Austria, had anything but a good influence on the purses of our book-buyers. A book at a dollar found a readier sale than one at four dollars and the buyer lingered talking war possibilities and probabilities with the salesman.

During the past year the booksellers of the City of Munich brought out an artistic colored poster reading, "The best Christmas present is a good book." It was quickly imitated in many German cities and during the Christmas shopping days these posters were seen in show windows and stores of all kinds. I know by personal observation that the results were very satisfactory. But the sales were chiefly of the cheaper books and therefore brought much work for small profit. I firmly believe though that when the political sky is clearer the same energy in advertising books will extend sales in far more profitable directions.

On the counters of the retail booksellers the new Christmas publications were piled mountain high. Provision had been made, as in former years, for every taste and interest. But again the book of which one might unhesitatingly say, "This is the book of the year," was missing. However, the general average quality advances steadily.

Romance and fiction, wide in appeal and cheap, lead as sellers. The new current novel by Walter von Bloem, Volk wider Volk ("Nation Against Nation"), (Grethlein & Cie., Leipzig, $1.50), which continues the work Das Eisene Jahr, ("The Iron Year") by the same author and publisher, 1911, is a war romance of the year 1870, powerful and slow-moving in style and portraying dismal tension and deep tragedy. French literature has perhaps something analogous in Zola's Le Débâcle. Happy military life is described to its full desserts in Du Schwert an Meine Linken ("Thou Sword in My Left Hand") by Rudolph Stratz, (Cotta, Stuttgart, $1.13). To friends of music is offered in Andolf Hans Bartsch's Das Schwammerl (Stackmann, Leipzig, $1.25), an entertaining book, which tells much about Franz Schubert, the Viennese composer. Into the times of the old German stories Schreckenback leads us in his book

Um die Wartburg ("The Wartburg Country"), (Stackmann, Leipzig, $1.25), which shows the results of exhaustive research. The eagerly awaited book of the authoress, Enrica Ludovica, Handel-Magetti ("Stephana Schwerdtner"), (Kösel Kempten, $1.25), also appeared.

Good Christmas books that sold well were Charitas Bischoff's Bilde aus meinen Leben ("Pictures From My Life") (Grote, Berlin, $1.25), a truly German family book, and a significant and highly artistic collection of short stories, by Zahn, under the title Wenn das Leben Zerbricht ("When Life is Shattered"), (Deutsche Verlagsanstalt, Stuttgart, $1.13). Of informative works there were many excellent examples. Amundsen's book, Die Eroberung des Südpols ("The Conquest of the South Pole"), (J. F. Lehmann, Munich, $5.50), was most interesting. I note, by the way, that Cook's "My Conquest of the North Pole," (Janssen, Hamburg, $2.50), also found a ready sale. News of the Deutschen Zentral Africa Expedition, 1910-11, has been given by its leader, the Duke Friedrich Adolf of Mecklenburg, in his book, Vom Congo zum Nil und Niger (F. A. Brockhaus, Leipzig, $5). This book, which was written in a delightful way and contained much new matter, sold well. There was also in the province of description and travel a little, well written book by Halitzer, America Heut u. Morgen ("America To-day and To-morrow"), (S. Fischer, Berlin, $1.50). It contains discursive descriptions of land and people gathered during an eight-months' journey through the United States and Canada. Special attention is given by the author to social and domestic conditions. A notable book of the Christmas market for friends of politics, Die Deutschen Erinnerungen ("German Reminiscences"), of the English diplomat, Whitman (Deutsche Verlagsanstalt, Stuttgart, $2.50), shows much knowledge of human nature. A great sensation was made by the first publication of the letters of Gustav Freytag, An Seine Braut und Gattin ("To His Bride and Wife"), (W. Borngräbes, Berlin, $2.00). This famous author who died in 1895 had very intimate relations with the Crown Prince Frederick, whose companion he was in 1870 at the battle of Sedan, and with others in influential circles. These relations are now in the letters very openly, and often also indiscreetly revealed, and in this fact is the importance of the book. Living, breathing pictures out of the great world of classic antiquity are brought us by the great grandson of Frederick Schiller, the Freiherr von Gleichen-Russwurm, in his book, Elegantiae (J. Hoffman, $2.50). Lovers of a sensitive portrayal of the older culture will find in this book many precious hours. To the last century in the time of Germany's rise to power, Pfeugk Hartung's Illustrierte Geschichte der Befreiungskriege ("Illustrated History of the War of Emancipation"), leads us back. The work has perhaps 300 pictures which are accompanied by an excellently worked up text. In this year, in which everyone in Germany is preparing for a worthy celebration, it will certainly be needed everywhere. That humor shall not be forgotten, I add Neue Buschalbum ("New Busch Book"), (Verlagsanstalt f. Literatur u. Kunst, Berlin, $5.00), which brings a great addition to the works of that dear humorist. Wilhelm Busch is in the great majority of German families a gladly seen and well-known guest, whose picture stories with verses make very welcome gifts.

This list includes the new books of the season, most talked of and most bought. Naturally every locality showed some variations, chiefly to be traced to local conditions and to special relations with special publishers.

I cannot close my report without dwelling upon the monumental gift presented to the entire German booktrade by the Kingdom of Saxony and the City of Leipzig. Upwards of $1,000,000 has been guaranteed for a complete library containing every publication of German literature beginning with January 1, 1913. The State and the City have also promised further generous help for this object.

H. PURPER.

ANOTHER NET-PRICE DECISION.

IF we may believe the reports in the daily press, the cause of net prices received an apparent judicial setback last week when Judge Ray, of the United States District Court, New York City, held that the jobber or dealer who consents to fixing prices as demanded by the patentee and manufacturer becomes a party to an illegal combination in restraint of trade.

The action was brought by the Waltham Watch Co. against Charles A. Keene, a New York jeweller, to restrain the defendant from selling for less than a fixed price watch movements patented, manufactured and sold by the Waltham Co. In sustaining the defendant's contention, Judge Ray declared that this case had no parallel in the Henry vs. Dick case, where the Supreme Court held that the patentee was entitled to make certain restrictions regarding the use of the machines he manufactured. In the latter case, he said, the patentee was to receive his reward partly from the use of the invention. The full text of the decision, which will probably be appealed from, is not yet at hand.

BIG DEPARTMENT STORE COMBINATION.

ON February 6, D. C. Nugent, president of the St. Louis department store—B. Nugent & Bro.—announced that department stores in several large cities, with a combined purchasing power of at least $75,000,000 annually, have organized the American Department Stores Corporation.

According to Printers' Ink, the department stores now comprising the organization, in addition to the Nugent store, the St. Louis representative, are Manheimer Bros., of St. Paul; L. H. Plaut, of Newark, N. J.; McKelvey & Co., of Youngstown, O.; R. H. White & Co., of Boston; Joseph Horne & Co., of Pittsburgh; and The Emporium, in San Francisco. Negotiations are now said to be under way for the admission of important department stores in New York and Chicago. Later, the admission of the largest stores in smaller cities will be taken up. The American Department Stores Corporation plans to cover the country.

J. B. Shea, secretary and treasurer of Joseph Horne & Co., of Pittsburgh, has been elected president of the corporation. The company will be nominally capitalized, and will be incorporated under the laws of New York.

The present headquarters of the company are in New York, under the management of Harry Edgerton Oliver. His offices are with the dry goods house of J. E. Manix Company; but it is expected, later, that buying headquarters will be maintained in all the principal distributing centers of the world.

The object of the organization is to consolidate the purchases and thereby get the lowest possible prices. The members plan to buy direct from mills or manufacturers.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE annual banquet of the American Booksellers' Association will be held at the Hotel Astor on the evening of May 15, the price of the tickets to be $3.50. It has been decided as last year to admit ladies to all of the privileges of the evening. Further details of the banquet will be given later.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE February session of the Booksellers' League School for Booksellers was held at the Liberal Club, New York City, last Tuesday at one o'clock. The speaker was Ernest Eisele, manager of the foreign department of Brentano's, who contrasted bookselling methods abroad, particularly in Germany, with those in use in this country. Mr. Eisele's address is reprinted elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

BOSTON BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

NOTICE of the formation, on a permanent basis, of the Boston Booksellers' League was given in last week's PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. As the Booksellers' League organizations grow, league spirit spreads, for the league idea has already proved its enduring value to the book trade.

In this connection, it may be of interest to reprint the Constitution and By-laws of the newest sister in the league family. They are clear and simple, and may be suggestive to those contemplating the formation of booksellers' leagues in other centers.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.

NAME.

This association shall be known as the Boston Booksellers' League.

ARTICLE II.

OBJECT.

Its objects shall be to support and stimulate good feeling and good trade conditions among the retail booksellers of Boston.

ARTICLE III.

OFFICERS.

Its officers shall consist of an executive committee of three, each member serving three years and elected at the annual meeting, as provided by the by-laws. At the next annual meeting, June, 1913, this committee shall be elected for terms of one, two and three years, and thereafter one member shall be elected each year. The executive committee shall, after each annual meeting, select from its own membership a chairman, secretary and treasurer.

ARTICLE IV.

MEETINGS.

The League shall hold noon meetings on the second Wednesday of each month, omitting July, August and December. It shall hold its annual business meeting at the June meeting, and shall arrange at least one winter evening meeting for all the book trade.

All important business shall be discussed and voted on at these noon meetings. Five members shall be considered a quorum.

Special meetings must be called by the chairman upon request of any three members.

ARTICLE V.

MEMBERSHIP.

Any retail bookstore or book department, or individual connected with a retail bookstore, in Boston or vicinity may be invited to become connected with this League on vote of its present membership, and each store connected with the League may send not more than two representatives to the monthly meetings.

ARTICLE VI.

FINANCES.

The Financial year shall begin at the second Wednesday in June, and the fee then payable shall be $2 for each store represented.

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE I.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Sec. 1. The chairman shall preside at all meetings, and perform all other duties usually belonging to such office. In his absence, the secretary shall preside or the treasurer.

Sec. 2. The secretary shall keep record of all meetings, shall send out notices of meetings, and attend to all business relating to membership and documents.

Sec. 3. The treasurer shall collect, hold and pay out all moneys, subject to order of the League; shall keep a correct account of all moneys received and expended, and shall render an annual report.

Sec. 4. The members of the executive committee shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting in June. A majority on the second ballot or succeeding ballot shall give election.

Sec. 5. Members of the executive committee shall not be eligible for consecutive terms.

ARTICLE II.

AMENDMENTS.

This constitution and by-laws may be amended at any regular meeting of the League by a two-thirds vote of those present, provided a notice of the intended change has been given to all at least one week previous.

ARTICLE III.

SUSPENSION OF RULES.

Any provision of this constitution and by-laws which is capable of being temporarily laid aside may be suspended for not more than one meeting by unanimous consent.

POSTAL MATTERS.

FOR ONE-CENT POSTAGE.

A JOINT resolution, introduced in the House, February 26, by Representative McCoy, of New Jersey, would authorize the appointment of two Senators and two members of the House to investigate the possibility of a universal one-cent first-class postal rate, and would provide $25,000 to defray their expenses.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE trade will be surprised and grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. Ellen Drake, the wife of Mr. H. R. Drake, the popular travelling man of The George H. Doran Company. Mrs. Drake was taken ill at her home in East Orange, N. J., on Sunday night, February 16, and passed away suddenly on the morning of Friday, February 21.

PAUL MARIE PIERRE THUREAU-DANGIN, perpetual Secretary of the French Academy, died at Paris on February 24, at the age of 76. He was in his earlier years a prolific author, dealing more especially with political and religious history. A treatise on Poland more than thirty years ago marked M. Thureau-Dangin's first appearance as an author. This was followed at intervals by his publication of historical essays, among them being "Royalists and Republicans," "Liberal Party Under the Restoration," and "Church and State Under the July Monarchy." His "History of the July Monarchy," for which he twice received the Gobert Prize, won him his place in the Academy. Another of his works was "La Renaissance Catholique en Angleterre au XIX. Siecle."

ONE of America's foremost musical critics, William Foster Apthorp, died of heart failure on Wednesday at Vevey, Switzerland, his home for some years. He was born on October 24, 1848, studied abroad and completed his education at Harvard. From 1872 to 1877 he had charge of the musical department of the Atlantic Monthly, of which at that time W. D. Howells was the editor. His first book, "Hector Berlioz," printed in 1879, contained selections of wise and witty pages from the autobiography, the literary essays and the letters of Berlioz. He became musical and dramatic critic of the Boston Transcript and during twenty years did much to elevate the tone of American criticism and to help form a taste for the best in music. Mr. Apthorp also undertook the herculean task of editing for the Scribners the "Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians," in three volumes. His publications include: "Autobiography and Musical Grotesques"; "Musicians and Music Lovers"; Jacques Damour and Other Stories (trans. from Zola); "By the Way"; "The Opera, Past and Present."

DR. BENJAMIN ELI SMITH, managing editor of the Century Dictionary, died on Monday at his home in New Rochelle after an illness of nearly a year. From the time that he became associated with the Century Company, in the early '80's, he was among the foremost of the men who edited the various dictionary publications of that concern. In 1881 he was associated with Prof. William B. Whitney of the Century Dictionary and after the latter's death he became the managing editor. He was editor in chief of the Century Cyclopedia of Names, (1894), the Century Atlas (1897), and the revision of the Century Dictionary (1911). When he was taken ill he was engaged on a school dictionary. In addition to this work he was widely known as a scholar and a translator. He received the degree of doctor of literature from Amherst College. Dr. Smith was born in Beirut, Syria, in 1857, son of Rev. Eli and Hetty S. Smith. He was graduated from Amherst in the class of '77 and was a member of Alpha Delta Phi. While a young man he tutored in Amherst. Afterward he studied in Leipsic and later he taught in Johns Hopkins University. He was a member of the Century Club and was at one time a fellow of the National Geographic Society. He also was a prime mover in the simplified spelling campaign. He married Miss Clara Shelton of Derby, Conn., who with one daughter, Miss Miriam Gray Smith, survives him. Dr. Smith's works, other than those mentioned above, include translations of Schwegler's "History of Philosophy" (1879); Cicero's "De Amicitia" (Laelius) (1897); Franklin's "Poor Richard's Almanac" (1898); Selections from Marcus Aurelius (1899), from Epictetus (1902), and from Pascal (1902).

PERSONAL NOTES.

EUGENE WALTER, the dramatist-author of "The Easiest Way" and other plays, is ill in St. Paul from ptomaine poisoning.

MR. M. G. NUSBAUM of the Nusbaum Book & Art Company, Norfolk, Virginia, who has been away for the past three months on account of illness has returned to his desk fully recovered.

JAMES BARNES, author of "Rifle and Caravan, or Two Boys in East Africa," and other well-known stories for boys, is planning a trip into the interior of Africa. He will have with him Mr. Cherry Kearton, of London, and will secure rare photographs and pictures for the cinematograph.

JOHN KENNETH TURNER, an American writer of Mexico City, was imprisoned on the 23d with the approval of Americans, for publishing in the Catholic daily paper El Pais, an article rabidly attacking the new Government and its motives. Tuesday brought news of his release.

PROF. LANDOLT of Strasburg, last Saturday performed a preliminary operation for cataract on Elizabeth, Queen of Roumania, best known as Carmen Sylva, under which pseudonym she published some eight or ten works. The Queen is now 69 years old and her general health is satisfactory.

THE man who makes a living by his poetry, Alfred Noyes of England, arrived in this country on Monday. While here Mr. Noyes will speak on such subjects as "Tennyson as opposed to Recent Thinkers," "Swinburne," "The Future of Poetry" and "The Great Green Table," a discussion of militarism. Mr. Noyes's published poems fill twelve volumes.

FREDERICK L. COLVER has resigned his connection with the New York Times to become business manager of Lippincott's Magazine and the other periodicals issued by Lippincott's. Mr. Colver was for many years prominently connected with the American Magazine and its predecessor, Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. Mr. Colver organized the Periodical Publishers' Association and was for many years secretary of it.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, the first Pittsburgh novelist and author of "When a Man Marries," "Where There's a Will," etc., in a recent interview stated that she had cleared more than $100,000 on her novels and fully as much in royalties on her plays during the last few years. The smallest amount that one of her books brought, she said, was $1,200, while the greatest amount received in royalties for any one of her stories was $50,000. And then Mrs. Rinehart added, "Literature is more a business than a passion with me."—So one might judge!

G. K. CHESTERTON has severed his connection with the London Daily News and Leader, after many years. In the future he will contribute to a labor paper, called the Daily Herald, which recently made a pathetic appeal for $55,000 to enable it to go on, and, to the astonishment of everyone, got $40,000. Writing in the Herald, Mr. Chesterton explains his resignation thus: "I had no complaint against the editor, who had always shown me kindness, but the paper had come to stand for almost everything that I disagree with, and I thought that I had better resign before the next great measure of social reform made it illegal to go on strike."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S "The Inside of the Cup," long awaited, will be published this spring by the Macmillan Co.

MR. WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT'S new novel, "The Road of Living Men," will be published immediately by J. B. Lippincott Co.

SINGLE volume editions of the collected plays of Galsworthy and Strindberg are among the forthcoming Scribner publications.

"THE JUDGMENT HOUSE," Sir Gilbert Parker's novel, which has been appearing serially in Harper's Magazine, will be published in book form on March 19.

ADMIRAL MAHAN'S book on the naval tactics of the Revolutionary War, announced for early publication, has been postponed until autumn.

A TIMELY book, in view of the legislation recently fought out so fiercely in Washington—and defeated—is "The Immigrant Invasion," by Frank J. Warné, announced by Dodd, Mead & Co.

CAPT. B. GRANVILLE BAKER is bringing out, through Seeley & Service, the English publishers, "The Passing of the Turkish Empire in Europe," illustrated by sketches from his brush and pen.

CASSELL & COMPANY'S travellers were in part incorrectly stated in the Traveller's Number. E. W. Hall represents them in the East and Middle West, Laurens Maynard on the Pacific coast.

"THE SEA AND THE JUNGLE" is the well-chosen title of H. M. Tomlinson's story of a tramp steamer's voyage from Swansea to Brazil and up the Amazon for two thousand miles. E. P. Dutton & Co. are the publishers.

THE present American visit of the Abbey Company gives additional interest to Lady Gregory's "New Comedies," which the Putnams have in preparation. Two plays included in this collection are now being given by the Irish Players.

"THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE OF TO-DAY AND YESTERDAY," by Nevin O. Winter, is announced for early issue in L. C. Page & Co.'s travel series. "The Art of the Wallace Collection," by Henry C. Shelley, will appear in the Art Galleries of Europe Series.

"DEDICATED to the Philistine, the Average Man, those central classes who have painted the world's great pictures, written and acted its vast dramas,"—so runs the dedicatory note of Gerald Villiers-Stuart's "The White Shrine," just published by A. C. McClurg & Co.

PROFESSOR A. F. POLLARD, chosen to inaugurate the Goldwin Smith lectures at Cornell University, will speak on "The Place of Parliamentary Institutions in the Development of Civilization." The lectures, early this year, will be subsequently published in book form.

ETTA ANTHONY BAKER has written for publication in March "Miss Mystery" (Little, Brown & Co.), a romance woven around a young girl who has been deprived of her memory. Mrs. Baker is a New York author who has heretofore written for boys and girls.

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE'S "The Highway to Happiness," with a well designed cover in green and gold, and page decorations in great variety (some fourteen different designs in all) by Herbert Deland Williams, is a recent Morningside Press publication.

By a recent New Hampshire decision (Bates-Street Shirt Co. vs. Place), if a shipment is made by a seller after an agreement as to a certain period of credit, the seller may not sue within that period, though the buyer refuse to accept the goods.

LUCIEN DORBON, publishers, of Paris, France, have published "Manuel Bibliographique des Sciences Psychiques ou Occultes," a three volume work on the occult sciences by Albert L. Caillet. Nearly 12,000 articles are included in the 2,000 or so pages. Researchers should find the work of great value.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have just published two new novels, "Their Choice" by Henrietta Dana Skinner, in which the heroine at once owns to being thirty-five years of age, and "The Mighty Friend," a modern romance of labor warfare, country life and love, by Pierre L'Ermite. This work was crowned by the French Academy.

"THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE," is the latest novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart. She pictures the conditions that existed in Pittsburgh (her own city) during the memorable flood of 1907. The sudden, unaccountable disappearance of a prominent actress is the nucleus about which the story develops.

THE eugenists, it seems, are all wrong. Mr. G. K. Chesterton crosses swords with them in his new book, "The Evils of Eugenics," to be published shortly by Cassell. Although the book is apparently a serious attempt to disprove the theories of the new science, the attack will no doubt be made in lively Chestonian style.

BOOKPLATE lines distinctly appropriate in a bookstore, deserve the attention of dealers. The Prang Company furnish display cards containing samples of the sixteen Prang Bookplates, offered in a variety of designs, some of which are suitable for children. Bookplates are sold in sets of fifty, ribboned and boxed.

THE date of publication of the long announced concluding volume of the American edition of Romain Rolland's "Jean Christophe" has now been definitely set for March 1. Among the striking episodes are Jean Christophe fighting on a barricade in Paris, his flight for his life to Switzerland and an idyl there somewhat like Wagner's with Frau Wesendonck.

WOODROW WILSON'S forceful address, "The Free Life" will soon be issued in a new and attractive form by its publishers, the Thomas

Y. Crowell Company. The same house announces the publication of English editions of "A Valiant Woman," the anonymous work on educational problems which attracted wide attention last fall, and of "Old Four-Toes," Edwin L. Sabin's latest book for boys.

AMONG the new editions recently put on press by Frederick A. Stokes Company are the third of "Bobbie, General Manager," by Olive Higgins Prouty, before publication, the second of "Ranching for Sylvia" by Harold Bindloss, the second of "Miss Wealthy, Deputy Sheriff," by Elizabeth Neff, and the second of "The Life Mask" by the anonymous author of "To M. L. G.," before publication.

To those who have watched the Metropolitan Museum of Art grow year by year, those who know some departments so well that they at once recognize a new treasure, the "History of the Metropolitan Museum of Art" by Winifred E. Howe, will give the satisfaction of a collector tracing the growth of his collection. An introductory chapter gives the history of early institutions of art in New York. The volume is for sale at the Museum.

THE John C. Winston Co. list includes a novel by Madame Raoul Duval, "Written in the Sand," a romance of the Southern Sahara; "The Reluctant Lover," by Stephen McKenna; R. Austin Freedman's "The Mystery of 31, New Inn," a story of baffling crime; "Monarchs and Men," by Maximilian Harden, will shortly be issued; "Foreordained, with Other Stories," by Everhardt Armstrong, and "The Winston Cook Book," by Helen Cramp.

ACCORDING to newspaper report, a contract closed a week ago between Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Harper & Bros. of New York, calls for the publication by the former firm of 1,000,000 copies of "Ben Hur," by General Lew Wallace, a Harper copyright. The deal was announced by P. A. Murkland, department manager for the Chicago concern, who says that this contract is but the first of a series of such agreements which Sears, Roebuck & Co. mean to negotiate with publishers.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY announce the following publications for March 8: "The Candid Adventurer" by Anna Coleman Ladd; "Stephen March's Way" by Harry Herbert Knibbs; "Sinopah, the Indian Boy" by James Willard Schultz; "The Drift of Romanticism" by Paul Elmer More; "The Old Law and the New Order" by George W. Alger; "Common Diseases" by Dr. Woods Hutchinson; and "The Making of Modern England" by Gilbert Slater.

"THE WEAKER VESSEL" by E. F. Benson, shows how the "weaker" becomes the stronger in a final crisis. This, and Arthur B. Reeve's "The Poisoned Pen, Further Adventures of Craig Kennedy, Scientific Detective," are Dodd, Mead novels of the week. In non-fiction they publish "The Three Gifts of Life; a Girl's Responsibility for Race Progress," a new treatment of sex hygiene by Nellie M.

Smith, and "Christianity and Commerce; a Study in Western Expansion" by Rev. Frank Ilsley Paradise, who treats of new methods of conducting missions.

M. A. DONOHUE & COMPANY, Chicago, announce that they have very materially strengthened their colored flexible and linen toy books; also their board lines of juvenile books. This house has also issued several new lines of standard 12mos and lines of general fiction, such as their new Abbot Series, Banner Library, etc., many with jacket Christy pictures for decorations. To the Boy Scout lines, Motorcycle Chums, Canoe and Campfire Series for boys, and several other of the important boys' and girls' series issued by this house, they will add many additional titles this year.

THE Reilly & Britton Company are asking American authors, known or unknown, with or without reputations, if they can write a $10,000 novel. In other words, to "secure a new story of such strength and striking originality that it will take rank among next season's best-sellers," they are offering a cash prize of that amount for the best novel manuscript submitted to them by August 31 next. No restrictions are placed upon contestants, and the novel chosen by the committee of judges—all well-known literary men—will be immediately published and extensively advertised. Full details of the contest, for what the Reilly & Britton Company believe to be the largest prize ever offered for a novel, may be had by writing them.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Times says that the volume of the school book business of the country is generally tremendously overvalued, some guesses running as high as $125,000,000. He points out that the United States Commissioner of Education states, in his 1911 report, Volume II., page 3, that the total expenditure for common schools in the year 1910 amounted to $426,250,434; text-books and other supplies, $6,264,240. This shows that text-books and supplies cost 1½ per cent. of the whole amount expended. He adds that it is agreed by all well-informed publishers that the total school book business of the country, including university and college books, is about $12,000,000.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American News Company held on January 30, Samuel S. Blood was elected president and treasurer to succeed Solomon W. Johnson, deceased, and Stephen Farrelly was elected vice-president in place of Mr. Blood. Mr. Blood has been a director of the American News Company and manager of The International News Company for nearly forty years. During that period the company has been the chief distributor in this country of the English, German and other foreign periodicals. He has devoted his life to the development of the news and periodical trade and is an acknowledged authority on its many phases.

PLEASANTLY gossip notes about things literary are, as usual, a feature of the "Chronicle and Comment" department of the latest Bookman (March). These timely items concern Maurice Leblanc, Alfred Noyes, the Findlater sisters, Harry Leon Wilson, Elizabeth Robins, and other people of note. "Impressions of Leonard Merrick" (illustrated), a special article by Arthur Bartlett Maurice, should interest all the fortunate ones who have discovered that author, and all the unfortunate who have not. Other special articles are "A Note on Fiona McLeod," by Burton Bancroft; "Morse's Portrait of Bryant" (illustrated), by Annie Nathan Meyer; "Some French Women Writers of To-Day" (illustrated), by Marie Louise Fontaine; "The Grub Street Problem, Pt. 1," by Algernon Tassin; "Supreme Moments of Detective Fiction," by Burton Egbert Stevenson; "Unpublished Letters of Wilkie Collins," edited by William H. Hayne; and "The Publisher's Reader," by Calvin Winter. "Continuity of Structure in the Drama," by Clayton Hamilton, and "The New Flamboyance and Some Recent Novels," by Frederic Taber Cooper, are other features.

HODDER & STOUGHTON, of whom George H. Doran Company, are the American agents, announce an important prize novel contest most ingeniously contrived. It is open only to residents of the British Colonies, for the best novel, the scene of which is laid in their colony or dependency. The novel may picture the present-day conditions or past history of the country. They will divide the sum of £1,000 as follows: Class 1—Prize of £250 for the best novel submitted from a native or resident of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland; Class 2—Prize of £250 for the best novel submitted from a native or resident of the Commonwealth of Australia and New Zealand; Class 3—Prize of £250 for the best novel submitted from a native or resident of the Empire of India; Class 4—Prize of £250 for the best novel submitted from a native or resident of British Africa and any other colony or dependency not included in Classes 1, 2, 3. The adjudicators are: For Canada, Sir Gilbert Parker; Australasia Charles Garvice, Esq.; India, A. E. W. Mason, Esq.; Africa, &c., Sir H. Rider Haggard. Full particulars as to conditions, etc., can be obtained on application.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBERT LEA, MINN.—Frank W. Barlow has retired from the firm of Barlow & Spicer, druggists, stationers and booksellers. The successors are Spicer & Dills. Mr. Barlow is one of the pioneer druggists of the State, having been engaged in the business for nearly fifty years.

LUCK?

THERE are still a lot of people who believe in luck.

Up here in one of the residence neighborhoods a bank-teller rented a vacant store room a couple of years ago and with his savings converted it into a moving picture show.

He decorated the place simply, but harmoniously; kept it clean, had a big plate mirror on which the pictures were projected rather than a wrinkled white curtain, employed a couple of boys for ushers of a variety that don't sass their mothers, and put in two big ventilating fans that kept the place from smelling like a wet dog in rainy weather and like the inside of an old clock in dry weather.

The ex-bank teller made money right from the start.

His prosperity was observed by a couple of young pirates from down town, the kind that think the way to get money is to steal it with their wits, either in money or opportunity, from those who have either produced the money or opportunity.

These two porch climbers with the efforts of others organized a company among their kind, rented a lot around the corner from the ex-teller's show and put up a rather pretentious moving picture theatre.

These two fellows were so proud of their new theatre that they became insolent.

They naturally selected help in their own image and likeness who reflected the insolent spirit of their employers to the patrons.

The two pirates ran a lot of low-browed films, economized in janitor service and boasted that they were going to run the other fellow out.

The pirate theatre lasted three months.

The porch climbers moved out and the ex-bank teller moved in.

Now, most everyone, including the pirates, says it was all luck.

As a matter of fact it was all a matter of service rather than luck.—Cottrell's Magazine.

Barclay, Edith Noël Daniell, [Mrs. Hubert Barclay.] A dream of blue roses. N. Y., Doran. c. '12. 4+342 p. D. $1.25 n.

Barbara Claudia Vincent grows up knowing nothing about her parents or family. At seven she was given over to the care of a fine old French couple, a sufficient sum for her maintenance being sent each year. When Père Joseph dies, Barbara and the Petite Mère find themselves in very straightened circumstances, and the girl, now of age, goes to London, to the lawyer, whose name was given to her guardians to claim the fortune she believes is hers. Disappointment is the only result of her visit and she is obliged to find work. How she does this, the people, some of them quaint, some of them merry, whom she meets, and her love for a fine man finish the story.

Barham, G. Basil. The development of the incandescent electric lamp; with 2 plates, 25 il. and 10 tables. N. Y., [Van Nostrand.] 8+198 p. O. $2 n.

First part of book is descriptive; second considers such questions as What the canal means; The great Latin-American Pacific coast; Get ready for the Panama Canal; Conquest of the tropics. Last part of book is historical.

Benson, E: Frederic. The weaker vessel. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. '12. 458 p. D. $1.35 n.

A young girl in a country vicarage, the inmates of which are sketched with fidelity to life, has within her the latent seeds of genius, and of a noble character. In the course of time she escapes from her quiet nest into the outside world, and later she marries. Then comes her test. The husband, like her, is lovable, and in his way a genius; but he possesses one fatal defect of character—drunkenness, which warps his whole nature. As he sinks lower, his wife rises higher. And when the inevitable catastrophe comes she meets it with a noble and sunny fortitude, and from the wreck builds up at last an enduring happiness. By author of "Dodo," "The climber," etc.

Betham-Edwards, Matilda Barbara. In French-Africa; scenes and memories; il. by original and copyrighted photographs. Chic., McClurg. 9+324 p. O. $2.50 n.

France governs one thousand miles of North Africa, made up of burning sands, fertile valleys, magnificent mountains, and dotted over with Arab cities and hamlets. This is the country here described, with accounts of the hospitality of rich and poor, fellowship with French soldier and Arab peasant. There are anecdotes of famous persons and some adventures. Portions of book are from two of author's works, "A winter with the swallows," and "Through Spain to the Sahara," now out of print.

Buck, Philo Melvyn, jr. Social forces in modern literature. Bost., Ginn. c. 7+254 p. (7 p. bibl.) D. $1.

Author seeks, first, to trace the gradual rise of the interest of pure literature in the mutual relation of man and society; and then to suggest the various answers essayed by thinkers and writers who may be regarded as preëminent in their several fields. He emphasizes two leading ideas: the gradual breaking down of purely national ideals in literature and consequent close interdependence of the literatures of Europe, and the conception that many of the problems of our day are not newly given us to solve but lost their first varnish years ago.

Chambers, Rob. W: The gay rebellion; il. by Edm. Frederick. N. Y., Appleton. c. 299 p. D. $1.30 n.

"Votes for women" is the groundwork on which this modern fantasy is based. The suffragettes, incensed at the men's continued obduracy, go on strike. A number of the most beautiful go off to the Adirondacks to a huge tract of land in the woods, where they live in caves, and sally forth to capture perfect specimens of masculinity, whom they net and drag back into their enclosure. Individual girls attempt to live up to these modern theories, but each in the end succumbs to the old order and falls in love.

Chase, Jos. Smeaton. California coast trails; a horseback ride from Mexico to Oregon; with il. from photographs by the author. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 18+326 p. O. $2 n.

Margaret Watson had been engaged to a teaching missionary whose work took him to China. Just as she was preparing to join him a cable came telling her he had been drowned. Later she learned he had lost his life saving that of his most rebellious pupil. All this is told in Margaret's diary, followed by letters written by the Chinese boy whose life was saved. These letters tell of his first contempt for Christian ideals, the gradual influence of his teacher, and his final conversion after the accident.

Hart, Jerome Alfr. Sardou and the Sardou plays. Phil., Lippincott. c. 403 p. por. D. $2.50 n.

Author says: "Nearly all of our knowledge of Sardou's family and childhood, we owe to the veteran dramatist himself—he confided to Adolphe Bisson, of Le Temps, some of his earliest recollections." In this thorough and exhaustive study of Sardou's life and works, Mr. Hart has gathered apparently all of the available data relative to the great dramatist. It is full of anecdotes, and tells of Sardou's youth and early struggles, his failures and eventually his great successes. Author has divided the book into three parts. The first is a biographical sketch; the second is made up of analyses of some two score of the Sardou plays—not critical but narrative analyses; and the third is devoted to the Sardou plays in the United States.

Herrick, Rob. One woman's life. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 405 p. D. $1.35 n.

Woman as a parasite, a grafter, is novel's theme. Milly Ridge first works her father, then society. Always amiable and pretty, she manages to secure the devotion of a number of people, men and women. She marries, for love, an artist, but when he dies she has one moment of realizing that she had not made much of their life together and his nature was starved. After two years' struggle she marries again, this time a wealthy man, and flatters herself that she is doing it for her child's sake. Scenes are laid in Chicago, Europe and New York. Book is careful picture of a type of woman that always gets what she wants given her gladly, and always avoids looking the truth in the face.

McKeever, W: Arch. Training the boy. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 18+368 p. pls. D. $1.50 n.

Train the whole boy and not merely a part of him—this is author's slogan. To explain how to do it, to sketch a practical plan for the rounding out of the boy, placing the emphasis upon all rather than some of the forces necessary for such complete training, is the purpose of the volume. It is divided into five parts: 1st, Industrial training; 2d, Social training; 3d, Habit training; 4th, Vocational training; 5th, Service training. Index.

McKenna, Stephen. The reluctant lover. Phil., Winston. c. 341 p. O. $1.20 n.

Cyril Fitzroy, the most modern of modern young men, is the reluctant lover, whom an advanced young woman determines to capture, chiefly because he is such a difficult subject. The events take place in London ballrooms, smart bachelor flats, and exclusive country house, where the characters meet and discuss with more or less wit the complex affairs of the heart, going on among them. Most of the young men of the story are left in the end within hearing distance of wedding bells, including Cyril, though he does not fall in with the advanced girl's plan.

Mark Spencer comes to England from Australia, where he had lived far from all intercourse except that of his parents. He is an Arcadian who thinks the world all joy and he meets Priscilla Hampden, and they play together until an unprincipled woman steps in to part them. Mark's first knowledge of evil is also his last, for he shoots himself.

Paradise, Fk. Ilsley. Christianity and commerce; a study in western expansion. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 20+171 p. D. $1 n.

The tremendous changes now going on in the East are already, and with the passage of time will in a more marked degree, produce a new type of eastern people. But these changes have brought Christianity face to face with a great and perplexing problem. The old methods of propagandism no longer avail to meet the conditions of the new life; something different must be devised; and the question before the churches is how they can best present to the new nations of the East the Christian ideals which underlie the civilization of the West. Book is a study of this problem of Christian missions and their relation to the great forces which are astir in eastern life.

Sinclair, May. The combined maze. N. Y., Harper. c. 393 p. front. D. $1.35 n.

By author of "The divine fire." Tells of fine youth, much given to exercise, who lives with his mother and tippling father, keeper of a small drug store in London. At the gymnasium Ranny Ransome meets a sweet, wholesome girl, Winny Dymond, and is on the point of telling her of his love when he comes in contact with her friend, Violet Usher. Ranny is captivated by her, never realizing that she is absolutely without moral sense and they are speedily married. Violet repents almost immediately. She hates her children, neglects her home, and finally runs away with another man. Winny stands by Ranny, and just as he has saved enough to pay for a divorce he has to use the money to bury his father. Again he saves, he and Winny are about to be happy, when Violet comes back.

Diary of a charming American woman of thirty-five, who goes to Holland with her brother's family, firmly believing that her youth is quite past, and that she is merely a middle-aged woman to all who meet her. A fine Austrian, delegate to the Hague Peace Conference, finally convinces her that she is mistaken.

Smith, Nellie M. The three gifts of life; a girl's responsibility for race progress; with an introd. by T: Denison Wood. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 14+138 p. S. 50 c. n.

Basis of this book on sex hygiene is the ethical truth: evolution or progress. Scientific facts of reproduction in plant, animal and human life are given in demonstration of this truth. The three gifts are the three attributes given to the different forms of life by means of which they are enabled to progress. Not only states the facts of reproduction, but shows their relation to life as a whole.

Soeur Thérèse, of Lisieux, the little flower of Jesus. N. Y., P. J. Kenedy & Sons. 13+420 p. pls. pors. O. $2.

Life of Marie Françoise Thérèse Martin, a Carmelite nun, who lived a most pious life, and who is accredited with various miracles performed after death, when she appeared to a number of persons. She was born in 1873 and died in 1897.

Stanley, Martha M. The souls of men; il. by Jos. Cummings Chase. N. Y., Dillingham. c. 353 p. D. $1.25 n.

Bob Mannering and his wife are living in the wilds of the unsettled tobacco districts of Cuba. Beth grows to hate the life, and when a wealthy New York clubman, traveling in Cuba, is attracted by her unusual voice and offers to help her to go on the stage, she accepts and goes to New York. She makes a brilliant success and the New Yorker demands his price. Beth almost gives in, is saved by a miracle, or what seems one to her, and returns to her husband and happiness.

Starr, L., M.D. Hygiene of the nursery, including the general regimen and feeding of infants and children; massage, and the domestic management of the ordinary emergencies of early life. 8th ed., with 20 il. Phil., Blakiston. c. 11+331 p. D. $1 n.

Stevens, Ethel Stefana. My Sudan year; with 40 il. N. Y., Doran. 10+305 p. O. $3.50 n.

Records a journey up the Nile to Khartoum and thence striking into the interior, going up tangled waterways where no white woman ever before traveled. Author narrates anecdotes both serious and amusing, tells of English residents in contact with natives, and also recounts the folklore and tribal traditions she gathered on her journey.

Talbot, F: A. Guardians of the coast; the lighthouses and lights of the world. Phil., Lippincott. il. 8°, $1.50 n.

Talbot, P. Amaury. In the shadow of the bush; with il. and a map. N. Y., Doran. 14+500 p. O. $5 n.

Close and detailed account of a remarkable but almost an unknown people, the Ekoi, dwelling in southern Nigeria. Much of the book is taken from the lips of the natives themselves, superstitions, beliefs and folklore. Author is in the Nigerian political service and has studied every aspect of Ekoi life, their religion, marriage ceremonies, secret societies, hunting laws, etc. He also adds much to our knowledge of African fauna and flora. Index.

Taylor, Wa. C. The shoe and leather lexicon; an illustrated glossary of trade and technical terms relating to shoes; also leather and other shoe materials and allied commodities, with especial reference to the production, distribution and retail merchandising of the finished article; including correct anatomical drawings of the foot; tables of foot and last measurements; standard carton sizes; systems of size marking; hosiery sizes; varieties of low-cut shoes; classification of leathers; standard size lengths; statistics of shoe production, etc. Bost., Boot & Shoe Recorder Pub. c. '12. 72 p. il. 12°, 40 c.

Thorn, W. H., & Son. Reed's guide to the use of the slide valve; il. by 46 diagrams and 2 plates. N. Y., [Van Nostrand.] 159 p. figs. D. $1.60 n.

Trautman, W: E. Direct action and sabotage. Pittsburgh, Pa., Socialist News Co. c. '12. 43 p. il. por. 16°, 10 c.

Usborne, P. O. G. The design of simple steel bridges. N. Y., Van Nostrand. 7+396 p. diagrs. fold. diagrs. O. $4 n.

Usher, Roland Greene. Pan-Germanism. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 7+313 p. (3 p. bibl.) O. $1.75 n.

Most momentous result of the Balkan War is the present tense situation in Europe, in which the interests of the Triple Alliance, composed of Germany, Austria and Italy, are arrayed against those of the Triple Entente, composed of England, France and Russia. Book discusses the situation with thoroughness. Beginning with an account of the great international movement known as Pan-Americanism, author considers the grounds for the existing jealousies between England and Germany, the relation of Russia, France, Italy and Austria to the affair, the actual effects of the war in the Balkans upon the balance of power in Europe, the relation of the United States to these new conditions in European diplomacy, and, finally, the close connection between the European imbroglio and the new nationalism that is appearing in the Orient.

Van Buren, Evelyn. Pippin; with il. by Reginald B. Birch. N. Y., Century Co. c. 316 p. D. $1.30 n.

First book of a new writer. Tale of the London streets, with a pretty stranded American actress one of the chief characters. Pippin has had to provide for a small brother and a shiftless father for three years. Picking pockets was the quickest and easiest way and she became expert. When Dandy, the valet of a playwright, falls in love with her, she realizes her dishonesty and tries to go straight. Her struggle and those of the young actress, whom she befriends, make an entertaining, sometimes pathetic, sometimes humorous story, which ends happily for everyone.

Van Kleeck, Mary. Women in the book-binding trade; introd. by H: R. Seager. N. Y., [Charities Publication Com.] c. 20+270 p. pls. O. (Russell Sage Foundation pubs.) $1.50.

Studies the bookbinding trade, one of the most important trades for women in New York City. It is also in many ways typical, employing every grade of worker, from the skilled craftsmen, doing artistic binding by hand, to the machine operator, hand folder, the wrapper, and the errand girl. Competition in it, between outgoing hand processes and incoming machine processes, is incessant. In some branches the work is regular, in others very irregular. There is a union in the trade to which some of the women belong, but most of them are unorganized. There are to be other studies of women's trades in New York City following this. Index.

Veitch, Fletcher Pearre, and Merrill, Jason L. Pulp and paper and other products from waste resinous woods. Wash., D. C., Gov. Pr. Off. 28 n. tabs. 8°, (U. S., Dept. of Agriculture, Bu. of Chemistry, bull.) pap.

Villiers-Stuart, Gerald. The white shrine. Chic., McClurg. 336 p. D. $1.25 n.

Etherea Vaughan is a successful novelist, having written stories of the sweet, pastoral description. She lives in Chelsea and her friends belong to London's Bohemia. An unscrupulous man gets a hold over the girl and insists on her writing a salacious novel, sharing the profits with him. The book appears under a nom de plume and then once more the man threatens exposure, unless Etherea writes another and also marries him. She is rescued by a fine Englishman, who has kept his ideals.

Wagner, Hermenegild. With the victorious Bulgarians; with an introd. by I. E. Gueshoff; with 55 il. and 6 maps. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 12+273 p. O. $3 n.

Author was special correspondent to the Vienna Reichspost and London Daily Mail. He made a careful study of the conditions leading up to the war, and had unusual advantages for observing and reporting the actual operations. He managed to board a military train, spent five days before Adrianople, went to Stara Zagora, from there to Sofia, where he met the Bulgarian Prime Minister, and owing to his knowledge of the language learned much. Some of his jealous colleagues suggested that he was a Turkish spy, and the authorities of Stara Zagora were hunting for him while he was being entertained by the prime minister. Index.

Washburn, Stanley. Nogi; a man against the background of a great war. N. Y., Holt. c. 136 p. il. pors. D. $1 n.

Author was one of the newspaper correspondents who were with this Japanese general through most of the campaigns with Russia. Short sketch of Nogi's life and character, showing him to have been a combination of the old and new, a blending of the Samurai with all the primitive feudal traditions in his blood, and at the same time the highest science in modern war. Illustrated from photographs by author.

Whitman, Stephen French. The Isle of Life; a romance. N. Y., Scribner. c. 498 p. D. $1.35 n.

Central figure is a man who believes in living for himself alone. What he wants and cannot buy he takes. He wants a beautiful American girl, who dislikes and dreads him and sets sail for Italy to meet her fiancé. He takes her by leaping into the Mediterranean at night with her in his arms. They are picked up by a fishing-boat and carried to an island near Sicily. Here amid a semi-wild people he imprisons her in a deserted villa. From this point adventures come with a rush until the surprising denouement is reached.

Wilda, H. Steam turbines, their theory and construction; tr. from the German by C: Salter, and rev. and adapted to English practice. N. Y., Van Nostrand. 12+191 p. D. (Broadway ser. of engineering handbooks.) $1.25 n.

Wilson, Forsyth Ja., and Heilbron, Isidor M. Chemical theory and calculations; an elementary text-book. N. Y., Van Nostrand. 138 p. figs. fold. tabs. D. $1 n.

Authors are lecturers in chemistry, Royal Technical College, Glasgow.

Wimperis, Harry Egerton. A primer of the internal combustion engine. N. Y., Van Nostrand. 11+143 p. fold. tab. D. $1 n.

Wood, F: A. The finances of Vermont. N. Y., Longmans. c. 147 p. tabs. O. (Columbia Univ. studies in history, economics and public law.) pap., $1.

Young, J: Preston, ed. Standard history of Memphis, Tennessee; from a study of the original sources. Knoxville, Tenn., H. W. Crew & Co. c. '12. 7+606 p. pors. fold. map, 4°, $15.

THE CLIQUE

The Recognised Organ of the
ANTIQUARIAN BOOK TRADE

This "unique paper" was founded for the benefit of the ANTIQUARIAN BOOK TRADE in 1890; and so marked has been its success that no bookseller of any standing can now afford to be without it.

The paper is issued every Saturday, and supplied to the Trade only. This unique feature renders it the ONLY paper published in Great Britain in which trade prices can be fearlessly advertised, and it is thus the BEST MEDIUM for wholesale houses who desire to appeal direct to the trade.

As a means of obtaining "BOOKS WANTED" its columns have long been recognised, not only here but abroad, as the MOST SUCCESSFUL which have ever been placed at the service of advertisers. It is received and read by every ANTIQUARIAN BOOKSELLER in the United Kingdom and the chief houses abroad.

SUBSCRIPTION, 8s. 8d. PER ANNUM. Subscriptions end at December 31st. Subscribers joining after January 1st should therefore deduct 2d. for each week that has passed. Any "live" bookseller can make the subscription out of the first number he receives.

SPECIMEN NUMBER GRATIS on receipt of trade card.

Our terms for advertisements are lower, notwithstanding that we stand FIRST among Antiquarian Book-trade organs, than those of any paper in the world.

THE CLIQUE is the official organ of the International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers.

Sciences Psychiques ou Occultes

PAR ALBERT-L. CAILLET, I. C.

Three volumes, royal 8vo, on two columns, aggregating almost 2000 pages, and describing nearly 12,000 articles.

This work should prove indispensable to all interested in Occult Sciences, for it aims at being the most comprehensive as yet compiled upon the subject.

It is the systematic classification of all scattered data of past centuries, as well as those of modern times, relating to this Science.

It is a vast Bibliographic Encyclopedia, including all the printed works relating to Psychic Science, of the three great Catalogues of the Marquess Stanislas OF GUAITA, of Count Alexis OUVAROFF and the Abbe Pierre Jacques SEPHER, reprinting as well all the matter quoted by Dr. A. DUREAU in his "Notes Bibliographiques sur le Magnétisme Animal."

This work is a sound documentary guide to facilitate the steps of reliable search regarding Occult Science.

"THE PARASITE"

By HELEN R. MARTIN

Judge Randall's wife in court had won
Divorce. (It comes out later.)
And he, left with their baby son,
A bitter woman hater.

His sister takes the boy to train,
But finds him so much bother
That she resolves that she'll obtain
A help-mate for his father.

She chose one who might well be styled
A queen of Southern beauty,
Then talks to Randall of his child
And tells him what's his duty.

He seemed unmoved; would not decide,
But made his visits often,
And sister soon was satisfied
His heart, this girl would soften.

And meantime raged his self-willed son
(But not when "Dad" could hear it).
Aunt Sally found that only one
Could curb his rebel spirit—

That one, a guest (one of the kind
That stay when un-invited).
She liked him though and didn't mind
The snubs or being slighted.

Then smashed like lightning from above
Were Auntie's dreams romantic,
When Randall saw his boy's great love
For Joan, the sycophantic.

His son came first. The course to take
Was plain, he saw no other,
So asked her only for his sake
To be young Arthur's mother.

So she becomes Judge Randall's wife,
But far too much we've told you.
The story of their married life
Will interest, startle—hold you.

Now Helen Martin's "Tillie" (Miss Of Mennonite conviction),
Was good, though not quite up to this—
Her finest work of fiction.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in FEBRUARY, 1913

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

POPULAR NEW NOVELS

The Port of Dreams

By MIRIAM ALEXANDER

Author of "Beyond the Law"

"Miss Alexander tells her story with much skill and beauty. . . . She has created an ineffaceable, absolutely unartificial 'atmosphere'—the atmosphere of Ireland's weird, sombre romance and of France's dark, hopeless intrigues of a hundred and fifty years ago. . . . Sincere, conscientious and interesting."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Ashes <sup>and</sup> Sparks

By PERCY WHITE

"Cleverness itself. The way in which the author manages straightaway to satirize impartially and with a splendid moderation two extremes in modern social life—the hidebound worshipers of the adventurers and crazily fanatical 'reformers'—is a thing of joy and an artistic master-feat."

—Chicago Inter-Ocean.Who Laughs Last

By ASHTON HILLIERS

Author of "As It Happened," "The Master Girl," etc.

"A vigorous and vivacious romance, rich in human content, abounding in telling contrasts of character and impressive portraiture, and seasoned with incident and adventure."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Burning Question

By GRACE DENIO LITCHFIELD

Author of "In the Crucible," "The Moving Finger Writes," etc.

"A story of a man who unknowingly becomes a bigamist, believing his first wife—a cold and unloving person—dead. Miss Litchfield presents an arresting series of circumstances in a telling and convincing way, and at the same time points out an important moral truth. . . . An intense and dramatic story."—Baltimore Evening News.
